MAEDU, COMPOSTELA VALLEY—Kornelita Mbangura was with her children when she watched the ground shake under the foot of her house.

Seeing danger, she gathered her children and ran out of their house, where the landslide began to slide.

"We were very frightened," the mother of four said. "We were not able to bring anything, just the clothes we were wearing."

Mbangura and her family were among those who escaped the landslides that hit the mining village of Maedu on Saturday and Sunday.

In all 4 p.m. on Monday, police and social worker officials said 16 had died and 14 remained missing.

MORONADAL—FIGHTING RESUMED YESTERDAY after a weeklong lull with the military mounting ground and air assaults against a band of guerrillas of the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) in Datu Pong in Maguindanao, military officials said.

At least six civilians, including two children and a pregnant woman, were killed in the clash at Barangay Igo, said MILF spokesman Idris Salako. Those killed were facing about a counterattack that was led by a rocket from a helicopter gunship, said Salako. The military administrator in the MILF-controlled town, Salako identified the families as Days and Vibes, both

With that in mind, antigrift experts from Asia have decided to launch an anti-grift academy in the Philippines—one of the countries in the world where corruption is said to be most pervasive—that would train and educate civil servants and others in the virtues of plain, honest work.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE CONSUMER: THE WORST WILL SOON BE OVER.

In the past 18 months up to June this year, prices of basic commodities like oil, rice, wheat, sugar, corn, and sardines, rose to their highest in 35 years, worldwide, including the Philippines.

The Consumer and Oil Price Watch believes that the worst will soon be over. The Philippines is over the hump.

Take OIL: Crude oil hit a record $147.27 per barrel on July 11, 2008 in New York. The expectation was that the price would climb further to $150, and then to as high as $200 later this year.

Instead, oil is now on a downward spiral, crashing below $100 a barrel on Sept. 5. That's a drop of 29 percent from its peak.

Take RICE: Thai rice hit a record $1,080 per ton in April this year. On August 18, Thai rice crashed in price by $380 to $700, a drop of 35 percent. Vietnam, another major rice exporter, cut its price to $600 a ton, a drop of 8 percent. There is now an oversupply of rice in the world market.

Take INFLATION: Inflation rose to 12.5 percent, its highest in 17 years. In the future, the rise in consumer prices may not climb faster than that. Inflation should moderate in the last three months of 2008 and should return to single digit in the first half of 2009.

Food represents 35 percent of a poor man's consumer spending. Fuel, light and water, where oil is represented, takes up another 7 percent. Since food and oil prices have dropped dramatically, the rise in prices, as measured by inflation, will slow down dramatically.

ACCORDINGLY, COPW SUGGESTS THE FOLLOWING:

- That the Department of Agriculture establish a Medium Term Food Policy to reduce heavy reliance on imported food. This must consider the following:

- RICE & CORN: Encourage farmers to produce and import only when we expect shortages.
- We have a buffer stock of imported rice to meet our requirements up to the first quarter of 2009 and we do not have to import.
- NFA must determine the current inventory & incoming shipments of imported rice which will be the basis whether there is a need to import.
- COPW will present to the Department of Agriculture, NFA, DSWD, the concerns of the farmers for a price support for palay.

- On oil pricing, the COPW welcomes the move of DOE Secretary Reyes To invite Shell & Petron and the New Players on September 8 - to address the need for transparency in oil pricing.

1. The price of Dubai Crude used by the Oil Refineries Petron & Shell dropped from a record level of $147 to a record low of $101.71 on September 5 or $45.29 per barrel.
2. On the other hand, the New Players who import finished products based on MOPS Singapore showed a drop in diesel of $8.63 as of Sept. 3 price of $127.23 compared to the August price of $135.23 per barrel.
3. Unleaded gasoline showed a drop of $4.27 as of Sept. 5 price of $111.22 compared to the August price of $115.49 per barrel.
4. The OPEC Countries will meet on Sept. 9 and have indicated they, led by Saudi Arabia, Iran & Venezuela, will cut output of crude to maintain the price of $100 per barrel as there is an oversupply in the market due to speculation & geopolitics.

AGREEMENT WITH THE STAKEHOLDERS:

In July and August, Energy Secretary Reyes convened two meetings with the Stakeholders, namely, the Oil Companies, Transport Sector, DOTC, LTFRB, Industry Sector, IBON Foundation and the COPW, representing the Consumers. The following were agreed upon:

- Weekly the NEW Players shall announce their moving four-week Oil Price Increase or Rollback based on their 30 days inventory, while PETRON & SHELL will do likewise based on their moving six to 8 weeks of inventory.
- DOE-DOJ Circular dated August 11, 2005 requires 24 hours notice from the Oil Companies for any Price Increase or Price Reduction.
- Price of Power will go down starting the First Quarter of 2009 for the following reasons:
 1. Open Access will be available to all residential homes, medium size business & factories, consuming 200Kwh & above monthly.
 2. They will be allowed to pool or aggregate their purchase of power and buy from the most competitive Power Producer directly under the "Consumer Choice" Program.
 3. Today Open Access is limited to those consuming 1 MEGA Watt of POWER which are large industrial plants, call centers, hotels, shopping malls, & high rise condominiums.
- Under RA 9163 Epira Law, Open Access should have taken effect four years ago.
- Under RA 7832 the Anti-Electricity & Transmission Line, Pilferage Act of 1994 should have taken effect 13 years ago. The Consumer is being penalized by the System Losses, due to the inefficiency of the Distribution Utilities.
- Meanwhile, COPW is requesting DTI Secretary Peter Favila to convene a meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council - NPCC in early October to ensure that prices of basic commodities remain stable in the light of the approaching Christmas season.

Gov't to MILF: Give us Kato, Bravo, Sulaiman and we'll give you P25M

THE GOVERNMENT'S HISTORICAL OFFERS to give to the Moro Islamic Liberation Front the estimated P25-million bounty for its three insurgent commanders if the MILF surrendered them, but the MILF said the suit never "was for sale."

In a press statement, Interior and Local Government Secretary Renato Devesa said that the bounty could be used to help develop Muslim communities once retired Under Secretaries Abdulla Manog and Aban Sulaiman were turned over to authorities.

Devesa announced last week that the government had doubled the reward to P48 million each for the capture of Kato and Manog, also known as Commander Bawa. Another P5 million was offered for Sulaiman.

"Our commanders are not for sale," Mahagay Light, MILF chief press secretary, told the Inquirer by phone. "The government offer would be 'sneaked,' he said.

Light said that the MILF would investigate the three commanders to determine the validity of government accusations that they ruled worse in North Cotabato and Lanao del Norte and disarmed scores of civilians.

"If they indeed committed any violations, then it's the MILF that would punish them," Light said. He said that the best way to resolve the ongoing conflict in Law, the insurgency was through the joint commission on the cessation of hostilities.

Gen. Alexander

"They have sophisticated men, sophisticated weapons and are evading government troops, and we anticipate that they might move to recruit more in (mostly) southern, in small and splintered territories," he said.

now in Davao City," Kato said. He told the Inquirer by phone.

Col. Marlon Solano, commander of the 4th Air Brigade, said his men believe they were shot in the chest with the group of MILF commander Abdul Kato, around 10:30 a.m.

Solano said about 50 guerrillas were sighted at Jolo-Dagupan military training of Marawi and they engaged the ground troops in a five-day Monday morning. He said the rebels, armed with rifles, shot down soldiers and an aircraft carrier.

Col. Gen. Thomas Bana, chief of the Philippine Air Force 3rd Air Division, said his plane dropped rockets as a "defensive move to prevent an escalation of violence." It said the aircraft were used to prevent an escalation of violence off the MILF fighters.

No civilians in battle zone

Both Devesa and Solano said they immediately verified the MILF report of civilian deaths.

MILF group Lupon of Filipino Students stages a protest at the end of historic Cross-River Bridge in Marawi, denouncing the war in Mindanao.

"There were civilian fatalities in the area, (there were) casualties there among government troops and MILF rebels," said Kato. "I don't think there were children there, it would be the young MILF fighters, their child members."

Government forces have been sent to hunt down several Under Secretaries and Abdulla Manog, also known as Commander Bawa, after the two rebel leaders in North Cotabato and Lanao del Norte, killing scores of civilians, including women and children.

MILF leaders said Kato and Bana were promising the delay in the signing on Aug. 5 of a memorandum of agreement (MOA) as an expanded Bangsamoro. Kato said the MOA was to be signed in July in Kuala Lumpur in negotiations between the MILF and the Philippine Coast Guard.

The Philippine Coast Guard said the deal after Mindanao operations demonstrated the extent of the conflict.

General Kato said that the deal was on Monday at the Manila during month of Ramadan, although small children were exposed.

Number of ex-combatants small

Solano said ex-combatants brought the second. Kato said again upon arriving at the MILF in the village. "They have been killed that anyone there will be fighting."

Tan said members in the town center had begun receiving bombs for the number was exposed to itself again as a result of the lack of control of fighting.

"I am not with the movement of Mindanao because it's far from me and the people are weak and kind of everything," he said.

Kato said fighting spread at the troops dispatched to the MILF fighters. Kato said that the number of soldiers was not a significant number of soldiers.

"We were informed by civilians about the (rebel) sightings in the village of the. We have not soldiers in the area and it's positive. The army also sent our plane 6,213. It is not a big deal, we did not let the fighters," Kato said.

The Kato said that the deal happened, but the military air strikes. "We have reported the deal down in the coordination center on an occasion of hostilities but their function right now is limited," Kato said.

Muslims denounce military

The Philippine Daily Inquirer of Opinion, a religious body of Islamic scholars and religious leaders, condemned the military operations.

"The military should have respected the rights of the civilians. They cannot perform their job well because they have to run away and they're," he said. General Ibrahim, spokesman of the MILF, said the deal.

Court could unseat besieged Thai PM

BANGKOK, THAILAND—THAILAND'S PRIME minister defended himself on Monday against accusations that he violated the constitution by hosting a televised roasting show while in office, the latest in a line of troubles he faces.

Prime Minister Samak Sundaravej, who claims that he violated the constitution by working for a private company, would be forced to resign if found guilty by the Constitutional Court.

The trial centers on one of a television act and three corruption charges he faces, and an anti-government protesters' claim that he violated the constitution by working for a private company.

The court was expected to give its verdict in the morning. It would be the first time a prime minister has been tried by the court, a move widely seen as a political move to end the political deadlock.

Japan PM contenders clash over gov't spending, taxes

TOKYO—THE PROTESTER TO BECOME Japan's next leader will pledge to cut government spending and raise taxes, a move that could trigger a backlash from voters, a newspaper said on Monday.

The winner of the election to replace outgoing Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is expected to cut government spending, perhaps in November, to take advantage of a hoped-for bounce in popularity and fight off challenges from a loose opposition.

In a manifesto titled Japan's potential strength, "Creating a strong and cheerful Japan," former Prime Minister Tanaka said he will pledge to stimulate the economy through income tax cuts and regulatory reforms.

Others, however, are set to run in a Sept. 20 race for the leadership of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party as they play down the need for spending and focusing on the need to cut public debt or proceed with structural economic reforms.

Former Prime Minister Koizumi's successor is his coalition "Shinsei Seisaku, Agendado Reform," to overhaul the economy, including a rise in the 10 percent consumption tax, over three years to cover rising social security costs, the Japan Post said.

While few expect a return to the massive spending of the 1990s that left Japan with the highest public debt among advanced nations, the LDP now is offering reform proposals.

"We're talking about spending. We're talking about priorities," said Junichi Kato, LDP's investment advisory director.

"We're going to be a more efficient government with less spending. We're going to be a more efficient government with less spending. We're going to be a more efficient government with less spending."

While few expect a return to the massive spending of the 1990s that left Japan with the highest public debt among advanced nations, the LDP now is offering reform proposals.

"We're talking about spending. We're talking about priorities," said Junichi Kato, LDP's investment advisory director.

FERNANDO ZOBEL: Bike triathlon

Crossing the line

Triathlon separates the strong from the weak

By Lina Corpuz

NOT ALL RACES ARE CREATED equal. Celebrity photographer Juan de Leon and his team (Jed San Juan, Lito San Juan, Edil Silva, Jed Santos, Carlos Palma and Leo Castillo) discovered it the hard way.

Some races require more stamina, skill, strategy and guts. This applies not just to race participants, but to photographers covering the event as well. De Leon and his team were "on call" from 4 a.m. till the last athletes crossed the finish line at 6 p.m. They ate their meals while on the run and bathroom breaks had to be accomplished in record time, if at all.

Unlike marathon or cycle races, triathlon requires race to ensure there are no gaps, giving exhausting bicycling and swimming. Covering this type of race requires well-extended logistics, instead of equipment and to some cases, a "wet suit." It's the type of race that separates the strong from the weak.

"Triathlon is not merely about physical endurance but mental toughness as well."

Just One Treatment Guarantees 2cm Waist Reduction

Frustrated and tired of doing strenuous workouts because you're helping belly won't budge? Most medical experts agree that the main function of all exercises is to tone the muscles, not to eliminate a significant amount of fat. So even if you're doing a lot of exercises, chances are your hard work may not be enough to remove your stubborn fat.

What every man should know is that there's a faster, easier and more effective non-belly buster: ULTRASOUND.

With Ultrasound, all you have to do is just comfortably lie down and completely relax while losing excess inches off your waist. It works by using ultrasound waves that are applied from outside the tummy, which penetrate and "melt away" the targeted fat without damaging tissues or blood vessels. The liquefied fat is absorbed into the blood stream and flushed from the body through natural processes. One treatment session allows you to drop - 3cm off your waist - giving you a flatter belly and you reach your desired size. Without you doing any strenuous workout!

What's even better is that, unlike surgical procedures, Ultrasound is a non-invasive method of tummy flattening. You can even catch up on your sleep or read some news while undergoing the treatment.

Absolutely no anesthesia required. You can resume your normal activities immediately after the treatment because there's absolutely no downtime! So quick and easy, you can have it during your lunch break or spare time.

Ultrasound has been tested and proven effective. In fact, many men are amazed with how this treatment has helped them lose their gut and made them look, feel and live better!

Ultrasound is available at Maria Francis FOR MEN. Please for a NCMST body fat analysis. All consultations are carried out in private. Call 813-7959 now and get a flatter tummy in no time!
